ITALY SEEKING WAR?

Abyssinia Makes Allegation

Geneva, May 22.
Little progress towards the settlement of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute can be reported by the League of Nations Council, now in session here.

Meanwhile the Abyssinian Government has sent another note to the League. This time Abyssinia accuses Italy of evading settlement of the dispute between the two nations by arbitration.

Abyssinia's note suggests that Italy is deliberately seeking war and avoiding an amicable settlement.

Italy, meanwhile, is busily engaged in hurrying armaments and troops to Eritrea and Italian Somaliland in preparation for a campaign against the Ethiopians,
the note states.

It is felt that the publication of these somewhat truculent notes and messages is hindering the task of the Council, as Italy is not in the mood to show a moderate spirit in the face of the defiant Abyssinian attitude.—

PEACE EFFORTS

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright)]

Geneva, May 22.
Lord Privy Seal Eden's efforts to mediate between Italy and Abyssinia are meeting with considerable difficulties and the question is no nearer to solution since the Italians still firmly oppose to having the League Council to appoint either a rapporteur or an advisory committee for the Italo-Abyssinian dispute. The only way out of the dilemma appears to be that the League Council will adopt the Italian standpoint which is that the result of direct negotiations between the two parties to the dispute should be awaited before further action is taken by the League. This would practically mean that the whole matter will be held over for another few months during which time the conflict is almost certain to reach a decisive stage.—

CEREMONY OF THE SWORD

Royal Entry Into City

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 9.

When the King and Queen arrived at the City of London boundary at Temple Bar the Ceremony of the Sword—dating back centuries—was enacted.
From the City came the Lord Mayor, Sir Stephen Killik, riding in his coach, with his sword-bearer and the Serjeant-at-Arms.
Before him came deputations from the Court of Aldermen and the Court of Common Council.

Their carriages were lined up lower down the Strand, and they stood on the edge of the pavement to await the Royal processions.
The Mace-Bearer on one side of the Lord Mayor, the Sword-Bearer, with the hit of the pearl sword—symbol of the City's independence—rested on the other.

The Duke of York's procession and that of the Prince of Wales swept down with their escorts amid the cheering crowds, and the cavalry went by in glittering array.
When they had passed a length of purple cord was stretched across the roadway, held by two police officers. Within half a minute, and before the first rider of their Majesties' escort came in sight, it was withdrawn.

Their Majesties' carriage pulled up opposite the Lord Mayor, now standing out in the roadway.

MARITIME DAY

To Be Celebrated Shortly

Washington, May 22.
A "National Maritime Day" is to be celebrated throughout America shortly, by order of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, made the announcement in a broadcast speech to-night, and also asserted that the world was on the threshold of a great commercial and industrial revival.

Mr. Hull explained that the "Maritime Day" was being held in order to emphasize the necessity of the United States shipbuilders maintaining an adequate merchant marine in view of the increasing bulk of America's trade.

He emphasised, however, the obstacles still in the path of worldwide prosperity, declaring they must be removed through international co-operation.—

MACON CRASH INQUIRY

Cause Of Break-Up Not Known

Washington, May 22.

The Navy Department, reporting on the Macon disaster, states that the Department is unable to determine whether it was just wind or a structural defect which caused the loss of the ship.

A court of enquiry into the affair has praised very highly the conduct of the officers and men of the big dirigible, and has absolved them from all blame.—

SINO-JAPANESE CLASH

In Demilitarised Zone

Peking, May 22.

A small detachment of Japanese troops clashed with Chinese irregulars inside the demilitarised zone yesterday afternoon. It was admitted at the office of the Japanese Military Attaché here today.

This confirms earlier reports that a force of Japanese troops from Jehol, believed to number 200, had entered the demilitarised zone in pursuit of Chinese volunteers commanded by General Sun Yun Chin, who recently fled from Jehol Province into the Lwantung Treaty zone.

Preparations are now afoot for the holding of a Sino-Japanese Conference at Tientsin to discuss Lwantung problems. Mr. Takahashi and Mr. Yin Ju Keng, Administrative Inspector of the de-militarised zone, have already left for the conference.—

where a purple carpet had been spread on the ground. On side of the Strand was in shadow, but the spot where the civic party stood with bared heads was bathed in brilliant sunshine.

The Lord Mayor received the Great Sword from its bearer, advanced, lowered the point, and said: "I surrender to your Majesty the sword of your loyal and ancient City of London, and offer to your Majesties the loyal greetings and congratulations of the citizens."

The King then returned the sword, the Lord Mayor walked back to his carriage, and his coach preceded the Royal procession on the way to St. Paul's.

You should just have a peep at the marvellous collection of cocktail dresses that this popular store has on display. Beautiful styles in organdie and muslins the very thing to wear for these hot evenings. One model in navy blue spotted muslin was most attractive, and another very cute style in apple green chiffon was admired by many.

MAYO'S SALE

Will be celebrating their second anniversary with a sale on June 1 for six days only. One should take this opportunity and get a really nice hat from them.

The Vogue Of White

White trimmings on dark dresses, white hats or white trimmings on dark hats are springlike fashions which Paris favours. The shops are richly stored with every kind of white neck trimming, from the simple piqué or linen collar to the most elaborate flower wreaths to be set about the neck opening of a dress. The white flower neck trimming is the newest fashion. Flat, neat, shaped to lie more easily in the front of the dress, these stiff white trimmings make a navy-blue or black dress look fresh.

Then there are organdie scarves with embroidered ends to be tied to a bow; deep bibs of white piqué, which are sewn with silver or gilt nail heads or sequins; folded collars with the folds held in place by a big coloured, or metal button. White organdie ruffles, fussy bows, delicately embroidered fronts and waistcoats, also in organdie and piqué, or linen, are made to go with coats and skirts. With hats, too, are made of piqué or organdie, or again, linen. Small toques are trimmed with white flowers of the same material. Soft-brimmed hats in white petersham with a narrow black ribbon, and small hats with soft black veils lying about them, are put with severely cut tailor-mades. This fashion for white necessarily means simple dresses, coats and skirts. White gloves and white bags are the usual accompaniments.

WHITE AND PALE ROSE

In colour, trimmings and accessories are as well supplied. What is made in white is made also in pale rose. Coloured embroideries in braids, in applications of linen, piqué, and silk, cut out into leaf patterns, are put on the fronts and sleeves of coat-frocks and waistcoats. There are loop ties of decorative ribbons and bits of old brocades to be slipped into a collar of a dress or blouse. Jackets are trimmed with braided frogs. Coloured flowers are worn as button-holes and as hat trimmings. There are no loose sprays of blossoms; all flowers are closely bound together in tight little bunches, flat clusters, or trim sprays. Coloured flower patterns are also used in enamel jewelry. There are crisps, necklaces headbands in coloured enamels; small rosebuds, daisy chains, wreaths of forget-me-nots. Ivory clips and bracelet are carved into flower patterns, and old silver ornaments in flower designs are again worn.

Fob watches go with tailor-mades. Hermes has a good many of these, one being in a crocodile case hanging from a leather cord; others are in crystal and in wood, and may be attached to at chain or clipped into a pocket. Jewelled vanity cases include a rectangular metal case imitating gold and trimmed with silver initials. Metal boxes, in the place of bags, are carried in the evening; and there are all sorts of ornamental metal and crystal cases for cigarettes. The initial fob in metal, which is worn hanging from the pocket of a skirt or the breast pocket of a jacket, is commonly used as a bit of decoration on a simple tailor-made. A jewelled pin or brooch on a necktie, a jacket, or any sort of neck drapery is usual. Jewelled buttons, wooden buttons, almost any sort of ornamental button is used to trim a dress, a coat, a blouse. Eastern jewelry is likely to become fashionable as Eastern fashions in dress are adopted. The Indian headress for evening and the Turkish looped skirt have brought back afgree work and cabochons. Bracelets and bangles are heavy and may be worn in numbers on one arm. Jewelled belts are worn in the evening, flat gold collar necklaces by day. Rings are in heavy modern settings.

SLATE GREY HOSE

Slate-grey silk stockings are being worn with navy-blue shoes. All the pale shades of beige stockings are right for wearing with black and brown shoes. Flesh-coloured stockings go with white shoes. The leading boot-makers are not confining themselves to making the low, flat-heeled shoes now so popular. These they ordain to be fit accompaniments for country clothes, for early morning walks in town, and for sport, but they are insisting upon the straight, moderately high heel as correct to go with town clothes of formal styles. Box calf and crocodile are leathers used for walking shoes. Brown and black, grey and blue, pump shoes with light stitching are seen. Leather chains may go across the instep. Brown and navy supple kid are largely used for afternoon shoes. They may be plain, stitched, or trimmed with applications of patent leather.

QUITE CLEAR

A teacher was running over a number of colloquial phrases to make sure that his pupils understood their meaning.

"Now," he said, "what do you understand when we say that a man has been working like a nigger all day?"

"Please, sir," replied a small boy, "he was so busy that he hadn't even time to wash his face."

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHES

In summer there will be less white in woollens and more pale shades of pink, blue, maize, mauve, and grey, also strong, bright colours, such as green, red and violet. Irish-green, orchid-mauve, maize-yellow are much favoured colours in linens. Spots and stripes are the patterns used for little dresses, whether in linen, woollen, or silk crepes. Scarves with hats to match are figured in the same way. As summer comes flower patterns will be the fashion, little flowers on light and dark grounds. Tailored linen and piqué jackets in white, trimmed with pearl buttons, are good style and woollen skirts in navy-blue, black, grey and brown go with them. Some new colour combinations include claret colour with powder-blue and grey-green with maize-yellow. Scarves are giving place to white stocks and hunting ties made of linen, piqué, organdie, folded and pinned.

DISSENSION ABOUT HATS

There is much dissension about hats. Something conservative makes the Englishwoman cling to a comfortable hat. Something as stubbornly adventurous makes the Frenchwoman follow after strange fashions which are difficult to wear. A milliner whose knowledge of her trade is deep says that both are wrong. The hat for every woman to wear is the one that suits her. If she cannot choose it herself and dictate to the milliner then it is the milliner's job to provide saleswomen who can choose for her. The hats this season are unusually difficult to wear and depend largely for their suitability on the way the hair is dressed. There is a promise of better things to come. In the meantime the two shapes which are being worn are the halo hat, with its turned-back brim so shaped as to give to the head the effect of a halo. The second shape is the one which has a brim thrusting forward over the brow, narrow sides, and no back, but a "cache" comb of ribbon or flowers, sewn flat. This hat has a crown about an inch high. The halo hat has the crown fitted to the head and is the more comfortable of the two. The small toques are now made of feathers, flowers, ribbon, and straw, or in a material such as piqué. They all have little veils, though all women do not wear veils. Feathers may be black or in shaded colours. Flowers may also be mixed or all in one colour. The black hat is the French choice, the coloured hat is better liked by the foreigner.

NEW COLLECTION

Chanel's new collection of spring and summer "ensembles" consists of navy-blue and white; white piqué for the beach worn with a coloured or spotted black and white scarf; chalk-white crepe for the evening and some exquisite black net and lace dinner and theatre dresses. In navy-blue there is a long, perfectly fitting

SUMMER

BIG FASHION SCHEME FOR BRITAIN

Replicas of dresses worn by film stars on the screen will soon be available to British girls. Gaumont-British Film Corporation has, in co-operation with leading manufacturers and wholesalers, worked out a scheme by which girl film "fans" will be able to purchase at their local shops copies of the dresses worn by their favourite stars in their latest successes.

The screen exerts a great influence over fashion in America, and it is hoped that the present scheme which is being tried for the first time in Europe will stimulate the fashion trade here.

Design of the frocks has been placed in the hands of Mr. Joe Strasser, a former Hollywood fashion creator, and the materials used will, wherever possible, be similar to those used in the actual model worn in the screen production.

Under the scheme, which will come into operation in June, the frocks will be available in London on the day of the pre-release and in the provinces a week before the general release.

The first models to be circulated will be chosen from "The Clairvoyant," starring Fay Wray and Jane Baxter and "39 Steps" starring Madeleine Carroll.

The scheme will extend to the provinces facilities which Londoners have enjoyed for some weeks. A "Cinema Shop" already provides replicas of dresses worn by the stars on the screen.

Blue and white organdie is used effectively in this summer party frock worn by Diane Cook beautiful model in R.K.O. Radio's "Roberta."

BRACELETS AGAIN!

Bracelets have staged a spectacular come-back. There is no limit to the quantity which may be worn at any one time, and they may be of as many different kinds as one may possess.

Half a dozen or more of the slender bangles popular in a former generation may be allowed to join company with the jewelled bands of a still earlier period.

People who own old silver bracelets, usually inset with agate, cornelian, malachite and similar precious stones, will find them eminently suitable for wear with this season's colour tones.

The advantage of the bracelet over the ring is that the loose armlet actually helps a bony wrist or large hand or hides shortcomings of proportion between palm and elbow, whereas rings show up finger defects most uncompromisingly.

The whim of the moment is a thin gold chain to which jingling lucky charms and mascots, such as pigs and elephants, are added.

THEY CHANGE PLACES

Each time the bracelet returns to favour it occupies a different place on the arm. At one period it was invariably worn above the elbow. The nineteenth century mode was to wear three, one on the upper arm, one just above the elbow, and a third on the wrist.

While variety is permissible, the woman of taste will realise the value of discretion in the amount of jewellery.

PHLEGM

A racing motorist was testing a speed model when it swerved, crashed, and was hopelessly wrecked. The driver, miraculously unhurt, arose from the ruins, lit a cigarette with a perfectly steady hand, and observed to the rescuers who had rushed upon the scene: "Just enough left over for a decent motor-bike, I think."

GAY HOLIDAY CLOTHES

New Ways With Colour

There is a feeling for holiday garments in anticipation of a warm summer. Many materials are unusual and colours are blended harmoniously. In the country, when summer cambric and linen will run riot, the plain and figured fabrics will be mingled. There is great simplicity in this alliance, however gay the fancy fabric may be.

Jackets and skirts show contrast. A black wool skirt may have a gay jacket of patterned decorative linen, fastening with one large crystal button, cut away to show a dark blouse.

Some beige, stone, and white linen coats show a dark velvet collar and scarf, worn with a wool skirt to match. This is an ideal country or holiday outfit.

BASQUED BLOUSES

Figured cambric, lawn and linen are made into the new basqued blouses, or into little dresses with capes attached. There is much good tailoring in evidence, and crepe, silk, and linen are all used. Taffeta coats in colours also appear with dark skirts, and make a very dressy, chic ensemble.

Brown and grey is one of the most unusual mixtures this season. A dark brown wool skirt may have a plain brown silk blouse or a figured crepe in brown and grey. Worn with a grey flannel or linen coat and a scarf of the silk stuff this is very good style. The hat may be in brown, grey or the two allied, and with the dark accessories chosen carefully this scheme is quietly smart. The striped or spotted way is much gayer. A narrow brown, red and yellow striped skirt is effective with a brown or plain yellow linen coat, collared and faced with the gayer stripe and a plain linen hat. Very narrow grey and navy striped linen makes attractive suits or dresses with capes.

Striped silk taffeta coats, short and smartly tailored, are a charming mode for Continental resorts as well as London. These are worn with short black, dark brown, green, or all-white wool skirts. Sometimes the dark and fancy stripes are united on the new college or jockey-peaked beret.

A favourite holiday ensemble of jersey in dark red with a cream, black and white cross bar stripe. This has a yoke with the top part of the sleeves in red, a gilt buckle to a red belt, and a loose short raglan swagger coat in red.

A White Ascot?

There will be much white worn later on. It is said we may even have a white Ascot, relieved, however, with unusual shades, not the ordinary blues, pinks, greens and reds, but more delicate and faded tones. For example a lilac and washed-out-pink sash and silken underslip will be seen with a white crepe or silk. An embroidered white organdi has a belt and cords of pale brown and green, orchid colourings. A white taffeta frock for Ascot has a capelet of a pale nasturtium yellow. Soft suede gloves and shoes of the same are to be worn with a white ballbustle picture hat, on the brim of which shaded nasturtiums are strewn.

The smart side of the white and coloured vogue promises to be very interesting.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

"The hour-glass form of fashion, the upholstered hips. Strata above strata of lingerie, lace and "dessous," billowed and expanded so that the figures of 1910 seem to us like goddesses, enveloped in a haze of cloud and ornament." That As how Vogue describes the fashions of twenty-five years ago. Though we play today at reviving some of the fashions of the day, we know that really those fashions were more like Queen Elizabeth's than our own. Vogue gives you a number of them in its Royal Jubilee Number, and shows modern dresses along with them. They are like enough in many ways—big, fantastic feathers, taffeta skirts, clouds of lace and tulle, were as beloved of women then as now. But oh—there's such a difference!

COURT CURTSEY BEFORE LUNCH

"Presentations at Court in those days were very different from those which succeeded them." (says Lady Oxford and Asquith in the current issue of Vogue). "The Queen received debutantes before lunch in brilliant daylight. She sat, dressed in grey satin, on a dais surrounded by all the members of the royal family, and you had to make sometimes as many as eight curtsies before retiring backwards." This is one of many interesting reminiscences by Lady Oxford in Vogue's Special Royal Jubilee Number, which gives us a gorgeously illustrated retrospect of the present reign.

WHAT'S NEW IN SHOES

Low heels for town and afternoon are very new, according to the Royal Jubilee Number of Vogue. They are being worn by the smartest women, and sandals with covered toes or modified sports styles are often preferred with low heels. Suede, lizard and kid make these sandals. Low-heeled sandals for evening often leave the toes quite bare. This new variety of evening shoe looks particularly well with draped evening dresses of Eastern inspiration, like the famous Schiaparelli sari dresses.

Virginia Reid wears this alluring gown of gold satin in R.K.O.—Radio's musical romance, Roberta, coming soon to the King's Theatre. The gown is trimmed with bands of red fox. Entirely backless, the front and sides of the bodice are fastened, halter-wise above the neck. A black drape falls loose from the waist line and is edged with fur.

THE WIDENING SLEEVE

Paris Stages Fashion Changes

Mid-season collections are bringing new winners in styles and details. Many changes are apparent, and a wider sleeve element looms ahead in daywear frocks, coats and jackets. One designer beguiles you into believing that this new urge in widths comes from the jacket or coat when it may actually emerge from a frock through skillfully welded armholes.

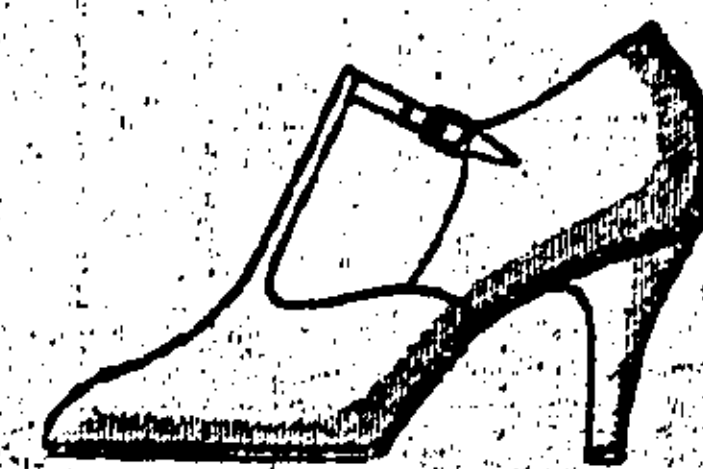

Blouses, too, focus this trend of sleeve deception and one with a meticulously cut white suit shows off balloon puff elbow length sleeves of blue and white patterned crinkly crepe coming from the tucked-in bodice, which has a rounded off rucked neckline perching up above the jacket.

Other new styles in wide sleeves are almost "canonical" of aspect as they sway open at the elbow, mid-forearm, or at full length.

Like the latest skirt fronts, they are set into armholes by inverted pin tucks and quilted lines to make them radiate out or honeycomb smocking to make them flop into their ultimate widths. The two former details are ingenious methods which also bring fullness, to the front of plain backed skirts.

Similar trimmings are proportioned mathematically, as it were, just to unite frocks with slack coats that may be half or full length but with a different character in swag from last season's line. One example gets the straighter movement from a honeycombed round neckline and honeycombed tops to wide sleeves.

All white, with a little touch of colour, is a special notion for morning wear on sunny days, the white being as dead in tone as chalk. From then on it turns to a vellum tint for afternoons, when sunny places point down into "blush" sleeves tucked in at the wrists. Maggy Rouff is using a new material in white and neutral shades called "Indo-Chinoise" that smacks rather of tussore with a chine finish. It is a flat cloxy patterned weave which encroaches upon crepe-de-Chine and marocain.

SOME POINT

In Paris Fashion

Contrasts in stripes exercise a smart influence, in the right sort of blue that looks subtle with Burgundy and Bordeaux red. The blue I mean strikes a note somewhere between light and deep sapphire and from time to time smacks of turquoise matrix. Deep chamol leather yellow forms a self-toned raised ribbed jacket for a plain brown skirt, the suit being completed by a fine cotton net blouse of the mellow yellow with a neat accordeon-pleated butterfly bow-tie.

These jackets glide over the figure in the unbelted semi-fitted tailored way, and they show an attractive motif in dark coloured velvet defining the back of masculine-cut collar lines which are, by the way, ideal for tucked-in mufflers.

Fastenings to jackets are either single, double or treble breasted. Two buttons usually execute single themes; two rows look very smart when well spaced in black patent leather buttons.

There is another afternoon jacket model of mat black with a minute starry white floral motif and scalloped border that tallies with a black skirt hemline.

Small coloured floral-printed silks on white grounds with a special weight for tailoring jackets are set off with velvet collar backs and mufflers.

If you have to seek the happy medium between strictly tailored jacket and dress lines there is a good style for patterned prints at the moment, the vague half-length swag line cut with raglan sleeves. It applies to one single dark colour.

With few exceptions blouses are dark and meticulously tailored to tucked-in. Take black as an instance for a sky-blue woollen suit with a black muffler to tally, and a little black hat of the silken fabric with short oblong crown.

CINEMA TRADE NOTICES

ADORABLE

The best of two continents have been combined to give you "Adorable," the new Fox picture that comes to the King's Theatre on Saturday. Janet Gaynor, America's most popular screen player, and Henry Garat, premier film star of Europe have the stellar roles.

Cast in a story that brings out the finest of their talents, these two stars will set a new standard in screen entertainment. The songs they sing will set you humming. Their romance will make your heart skip a beat or two. Their joys will be your joys, and their sweet sorrows yours.

The stars are supported by a cast that includes C. Aubrey Smith, Herbert Mundin, Blanche Friderici, Hans von Twardowski, Stuart Ames, Albert Conti, Ferdinand Schumann-Helink, Peter Duray, Esther Muir, Joe Catts, Barbara Leonard and Sterling Holloway. Wilhelm Dieterle directed, from the screen play by George Marion, Jr. and Jane Storm and the story by Paul Frank and Billie Wilder.

The haunting music of the film is by Werner Richard Heymann, with additional lyrics and music by Richard A. Whittington and George Marion, Jr.

"Adorable" is in tune with life—light of heart, carefree, joyous, happy and wholesome.

WEST POINT OF THE AIR

Wallace Beery as the gruff, soft-hearted "non-com" of Uncle Sam's flying forces in "West Point of the Air," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer hit now playing at the Queen's Theatre brings to the screen the same brand of thrills that shattered box-office records throughout every country in "Hell Divers."

This thriller of the skies was made to order for Beery, giving him one of the best and most lovable roles he has ever portrayed.

Such scenes as 100 daring flyers leaping from planes in parachutes simultaneously, Beery changing from one plane to another to save his son from a certain crash, hundreds of planes in unique formations and other such thrills among the clouds have had all who have seen the picture sitting on the edge of their seats.

The supporting cast, too, wins its share of praise. Maureen O'Sullivan gives a sterling performance that lifts her to the edge of stardom. Robert Young, after a year of exceptionally successful attractions, tops all his previous performances in the romantic lead opposite the charming Irish actress.

THE QUEEN'S AFFAIR

Except in the case of a "freak" picture such as "Kling Kong" or "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," only a small percentage of cinemagoers ever take the trouble to consider the difficulties under which the film they are watching has been made. Yet it must be obvious to everyone that a drawing-room drama which is really an intimate tale—a tale greatly prolonged—is much simpler to film than a story calling for lots of action and intricate crowd scenes. Making a film is sometimes on a par with organising a war.

Although the action of "The Queen's Affair," which is at the Star Theatre to-day, takes place in summer it was actually filmed in winter time under weather conditions which were uncertain or very cold. There are numerous vast crowd scenes in the picture, and the story of the organisation which made it possible to secure those scenes with maximum speed and efficiency is an interesting one.

The scenes in which this crowd took part were photographed from four separate angles and one of the most ingenious shots which was obtained was taken from a platform erected fifty feet up the side of a studio chimney stack and looking down across the roof on the crowded street below.

UNDER PRESSURE

One of the most thrilling and colourful pictures to reach a local screen for a long time, is "Under Pressure," showing at the King's Theatre to-day. This is the new Fox Film production which stars Edward Lowe and Victor McLaglen, supported by a finely balanced cast.

This time the tough and trusty team of "Lowe and McLaglen" are "tunnel men" leading a crew of husky workers, through silt and bedrock many feet below the river. One hour a day in the lives of these intrepid "sand hogs" is reserved for death, while they pursue their perilous work. The other twenty-three are given up to life and love above the river.

Now there is subject matter magnificently suited to the Lowe-McLaglen talents. Different from any story in which they have appeared, "Under Pressure" at the same time gives them the chance to be devils with women and dare-devils with men. But, even more than that, "Under Pressure" is a big and thoroughly human drama, with a love interest that is thrilling and comedy that is quick-witted and fast-moving.

RICHARD ARLEN

As An Editor!

We have seen Richard Arlen in many a "he-man" role; he is always seen to advantage in stories concerned with the wild west but his cinema fans were agreeably surprised to find that he can, with advantage, play the role of an editor of a newspaper. We saw him in that part last evening in "Ready for Love" (at the Alhambra Theatre) and opposite Arlen was none other than the young English actress Ida Lupino who arrives in Arlen's hometown to find herself the centre of the most malicious gossip.

Taking the opportunity to feature her in a scandal which meant circulation for his paper, Arlen treats Miss Lupino mercilessly until he finds that he is really in love with her. He then sets out to make amends, and it is to his credit that he succeeds. The way he abandons his attack on her and goes to her rescue provides entertainment of a unique order.

The picture will be shown again at the popular Alhambra to-day and those who are in search of something different to the type of film that we see here all the time should make it a point not to miss "Ready for Love."—F. Mela.

WEST EDINBURGH

And A General Election

(Special Air Mail Service)

Glasgow, May 9. The Government are more than satisfied with the result of the West Edinburgh election. It is true that the Tory candidate has polled 15,000 fewer votes than he did at the last general election, but he is 3,400 up on the 1929 Tory figures, while the Labour candidate (and this is the real source of the Government's satisfaction) is over 5,000 down on the 1929 comparison, the only comparison that matters.

This latest and strongest proof that Labour is not recovering ground comes at an important moment. The Government are still in two minds about an election this year. There are some obvious advantages from their point of view in an election this year, and even an early election, and one or two more results like West Edinburgh might decide them to take an early plunge. The unsettled international situation plays all the time into their hands.

The Jubilee sentiment need not be deliberately exploited in favour of the National Government, but it creates an atmosphere more favourable to the Right than to anybody else. Again, an early election would come before the new unemployment assistance regulations have to be put into force, and the Government may well think that there is an electoral advantage in that also.

There is one stumbling-block to a very early election. It is the India Bill. That must be passed. But it will be through the Commons by Whitsuntide and might reasonably be expected back from the Lords early in July, in which case it should be on the Statute-book before Parliament rises for the summer recess. An election in July or August seems ruled out because of the holidays, though at least one distinguished authority thinks a "between-the-harvests election" a possibility. But if matters continue to run so propitiously for the Government as they are doing now, an election as early as possible after the holidays seems in the highest degree probable.

JACKIE COOGAN

In Motor-Car Crash

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 9. Jackie Coogan, the former child film star, had a remarkable escape from death when a motorcar in which he was travelling on a mountain road suddenly plunged over an embankment.

All the other occupants were instantaneously killed. They included his father, Mr. John Coogan, Mr. Junior Durkin, the film actor, Mr. Charles Jones, foreman of the Coogan ranch, to which the party was journeying, and Mr. Robert Horner, also an actor.

The injuries sustained by Jackie Coogan, who first attained film fame years ago in Chaplin's famous picture, "The Kid," are believed to be not serious.

A passing motorist took him to the nearest village, where his cuts were treated by a doctor. His mother, accompanied by Miss Patricia Ellis, the film actress, arrived here in California in a specially chartered aeroplane, and left immediately for the Coogan ranch, escorted by State police.

Had it not been for a trifling incident Miss Ellis would have been involved in the accident. She had intended to make the trip with the others, but just before leaving her home she fell and cut her lip. She remained for treatment, and was compelled to cancel her visit to the ranch.

Describing the accident, Jackie Coogan, said: "We were near Buckman Springs on the way to the ranch when another car forced ours off the road. My father was driving and I was in the dicker seat with Durkin, and was pinned in the wreckage when the car crashed into a pile of rocks and plunged down a steep embankment. It overturned four times, and finally came to rest, right side up."

"The others were all thrown clear of the car with such force that I think they must have died from their injuries almost at once."

A WEEK POCKET MONEY

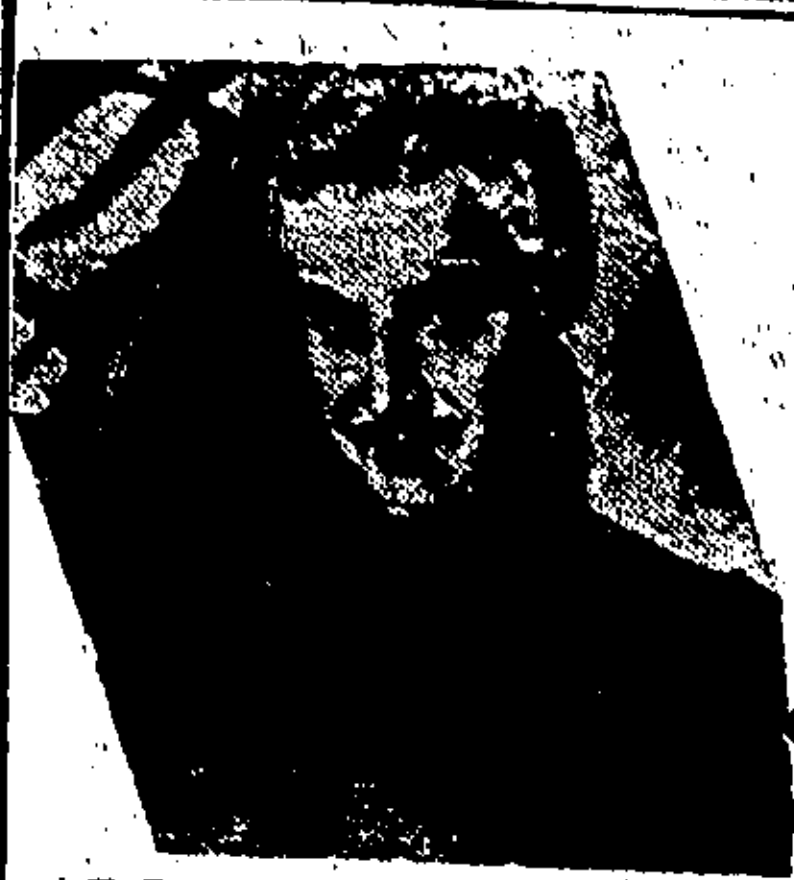

A Film Correspondent writes: If Mr. Coogan was happy in his son, Jackie was lucky to have so conscientious and considerate a father. From the day when the five-year-old boy made a sensation in Chaplin's "The Kid," his father was a model of tact and judgment.

At six Jackie had paid income-tax on £258,000. When he visited London with his parents in 1927, at the age of 13, and received £1,000 for a week's appearance with his father at the Palladium, he was a dollar millionaire, and a little later he owned two huge ranches. Yet, thanks to his father's influence, he remained a natural, likeable small boy, playing with trains, fascinated by performing lions, satisfied with the £1 he received weekly as pocket money.

In recent years Jackie has appeared in adolescent parts. Now, at 20, he is a strapping college youth, who could (and did) walk into Chaplin's studio unrecognised, and pick up the comedian in his arms as he was picked up in "The Kid."

MISS PRESTON TO VISIT ENGLAND

Shanghai, May 10. Miss Ursula Preston, well-known in Shanghai and Hong Kong on account of her activities in the Andrew Preston School of Dancing and also as Mistress of Ceremonies at the Candrome Gardens, is leaving by the S.S. General Sherman on May 28 for a visit to England, via America.

During her absence Miss Preston will spend some time in the United States, especially in New York, where she will visit different schools of dancing and investigate the American tempo. While in England she will study with Victor Sylvester and Miss Josephine Bradley, two world-known instructors. Miss Preston will probably return to Shanghai in October to open the new season. Mr. J. A. Andrew will carry on the school work as usual while she is away.

Asking Miss Preston what she thought of Shanghai at the end of her stay here she replied that she had enjoyed her stay here immensely and was eager to return for Shanghai people had been cordiality itself and she deeply appreciated their kindly reception. She said that she had noticed a great improvement in the standards of Chinese dancing and felt that it was only a matter of time when Chinese dancers would be in a position to cross the seas and compete in international dancing contests with the rest of the world.

DESIRABLE

A glamorous lady, playing a glamorous role certainly calls for glamorous clothes in the opinion of Orry-Kelly, the Warner Bros. designer.

So when he was informed that lovely Verree Teasdale had been assigned a dazzling role in "Desirable" which is coming to the Alhambra Theatre soon, he set himself a goal—to make the most glamorous clothes ever worn by the chic Verree. That he succeeded is proved by the enthusiastic praise accorded, his creations by the wearer herself.

In "Desirable" Miss Teasdale plays the part of a popular Broadway actress where selfish love of adulation led her to seduce her grown daughter in a boarding school, fearing loss of prestige if her own age were known. Jean Muir plays the role of her daughter while others in the cast include George Brent, John Halliday, Charles Starrett, Russell Hopton, Pauline True and John Wheeler.

The picture is based on the dramatic story of Mary McCall, Jr., and directed by Archie Mayo.

THE CAT'S PAW

An entirely new field of production possibilities has been opened up to Harold Lloyd with the assured success of his first venture in filming an original story "The Cat's Paw" showing at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Lloyd figured to make a radical change in style, and in "The Cat's Paw" he has done just that. He depends more on story, situation, characterization, and dialogue, rather than on the fast-running gag sequences so familiar to Lloyd pictures. The change, however, has not resulted in a diminishing of the laughter qualities of his picture, but the results are obtained in a more legitimate way.

RUMBA

Assembling a number of the strange and unusual instruments used in playing the Rumba proved something in the nature of a musical education for the production staff of Paramount's "Rumba," starring George Raft and Carole Lombard and opening to-morrow at the Alhambra Theatre.

Most important of the instruments in the Rumba band and most novel in its aspects is the "guajale." Formed from the dried jawbone of a horse, it dominates the entire orchestra and sets the tempo.

Next in importance are the famous gourds or maracas. In the native dance, a pair of these is handled by each woman dancer. A product of a native West Indian tree, the gourds are made by a process of sun drying. To make each pair, one gourd is dried for five days and the other for three in order to establish a difference in key, then a small hole is bored in each and a fixed number of shot inserted. The finished product gives Rumba music its distinctive and familiar "chuck-chuck" sound.

A specially written musical score by Ralph Rainger and the colourful, elaborate and fascinating Rumba choruses provide the background and accompaniment for the tempestuous love story of George Raft and Carole Lombard which is the central theme of "Rumba."

BIG OPIUM SEIZURE

Two out of the three men who were apprehended on May 11, in connection with the seizure of $3,300 of prepared opium at the H.K. and Kowloon Wharf and Go-downs Co., Ltd., as the opium was about to be put on board the s.s.
President Hayes were convicted by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

Chan Ho Fook a cabin boy of the s.s. President Hayes was discharged on the count of exporting prepared opium, there being insufficient evidence against him.
Chan Kau and Yuen Kee, the two coolies who were carrying the luggage at the time, were convicted on the charge of possession of the opium. Yuen Kee in the dock yesterday, claimed ownership of the drug.

The case as outlined by Revenue Officer A. W. Grimmit was that the Pres. Hayes arrived in the Colony on May 10 and was scheduled to sail at 8 a.m. on the 11th.

During the time the boat was in port special watchmen were engaged to keep a lookout for suspicious movements on board the ship, and if anything untowarded happened they were to communicate with Capt. Thomas.

HEAVY LUGGAGE

On the morning of the 11th, at about 7 o'clock, Firdos Khan, who was on duty saw the two coolies carrying three pieces of luggage accompanied by another man.
These three came on board, purporting to carry some luggage for a Mr. Anderson. The luggage appeared to be heavy and as Khan's suspicions were aroused he called for Capt. Thomas. Upon arrival Capt. Thomas found that the luggage was unusually heavy and slit open the bag when he found tins which resembled opium. The police were notified and Sergt.
Davies came and had the men arrested. While all this was going the other man got away.

The first defendant was arrested in the alleyway between rooms
Nos. 19 and 21, on board the ship with two suit cases in his possession. Defendant was in charge of cabins 8, 11, 13, 19 and 21. No notice was given to him that either room 19 or 21 was to be used.

His Worship said that the evidence against the first defendant was not very strong. It had happened before that passengers who had booked certain cabins earlier on very often changed their minds at the last moment. However after the hearing of the case against the second and third defendants the case against the first would be proceeded with.

NOT AUTHORISED

Sud Wing Nin manager of the South China Transport Co., in his evidence said that the second defendant had been in his employ for 3½ years and that he at no time gave orders or instructions to unload cargo from President Hayes. Uniforms were supplied to the six coolies employed by him and the third defendant had no right to be wearing the uniform at all. His coolies had no authority to accept any sort of work without first obtaining sanction from him.

Asked if he had anything to say the second defendant replied that he was asked by the third to carry some luggage on board the previous night and that he had no knowledge that it contained opium.

The third defendant admitted ownership of the opium saying that the second defendant had nothing to do with it.

After Firdos Khan had given evidence regarding the seizure of the opium his Worship inflicted a fine of $5,000 or in default 12 months hard labour on each of the second and third defendants.

WATCHMAN'S ZEAL

Capt. Thomas was called into Court and when questioned by His Worship regarding the behaviour of the first defendant replied that he seemed quite normal and was attending to his duties in the usual way. There was nothing to arouse his suspicions.

Defendant was accordingly discharged.

Revenue Officer Grimmit told his Worship that the value of the seized drug was worth H.K.
$39,600 and if the cargo had not been seized the shipping Company would have been liable to a fine of £3127,000 if it had been seized by the American Authorities. The Indian watchman did very well in his duties and if it were not for his zeal the thing might have passed off.

His Worship said: "Firdos Khan,
I do also congratulate you. I am sure you will not be the loser by this."

The destruction of the six bags were ordered by his Worship.

EXTRADITION CASE

Evidence was of a formal nature was taken when another hearing of the case against Tong Wan Kui alias Tong Chan Mun whose extradition is sought by the Chinese authorities for alleged embezzlement, and larceny of gold and jewellery valued at over $30,000 was concluded before Mr. W.
Schofield at Central Magistracy yesterday.

His Worship ordered a formal remand until 11.30 a.m. on Tuesday next.

Mr. W. S. Lockhart-Smith, the Assistant Crown solicitor appeared for the prosecution, while the defendant was represented by Mr.
F. X. d'Almada, Snr.

NOT ENOUGH EVIDENCE

Brought before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday, Leung Hing was charged with receiving one Maxim lamp knowing same to have been stolen or unlawfully obtained.

Mr. H. L. Denny represented the defendant and Sergeant Clarke prosecuted.

The complainant, Ng Chol, a gas lamp dealer, of the Sun Kwong Shop at 1, Cheung King Street, stated that he found the lamp missing on April 13. On Sunday last he paid a visit to defendant's shop at 78 Temple Street, Yaumatei, and saw the lamp hanging in his shop. He asked defendant to return it but defendant refused, saying that he bought it from a certain man for $5.

Complainant on identifying the lamp said that he recognised a few details on the lamp and besides that he also made a special fitting to the lamp in the form of a small ring.

Mr. Denny in submitting that there was no case to answer stated that there was no evidence given by the complainant to identify the details on the lamp while as regards the special fitting, any one could have done so if it was necessary.

Defendant was accordingly discharged.

RESISTING ARREST

Fines of $2 and $10 or in default 18 days' hard labour were inflicted on Yuen Yui, a 23 year old unlicensed hawker, when convicted by Mr. Q.A.A. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy for hawking without a licence and for resisting arrest.

Prosecuting Inspector A. Smith said that the defendant and three others were hawking in Jubilee Street and when they saw the Chinese Constable approaching they bolted. Defendant was obstructed by a stall and when arrested struggled with the constable. Defendant had a chopper in his girdle which he tried to bring into use. They struggled and fell to the ground, and an Indian Sergeant who came on the scene assisted the constable in his arrest.

Defendant alleged that the constable had a grudge against him.
He denied trying to strike the constable.

UNRULY STUDENTS

The unruly behaviour of a crowd of students at midnight on Wednesday at the Kai Tuck Bund led to the appearance of Cheung Hon
Wah, aged 20, before Mr. E. I.
Wynne-Jones yesterday at the Kowloon Magistracy, charged with assaulting Tsang Kim Wa, 19 of 3 Nam Kok Road. It was alleged by the complainant that he was struck by the defendant and others while he was with a girl friend and a boy. Sergt. Clarke stated that he received a telephone complaint from Mr. Anderson of 23, Kai Tuck Bund saying that some students were creating a disturbance outside his house and were using obscene language.

He went there with six Indian Constables and Ho Luk, a police Reservist, to quell the row. The Reservist was also assaulted. After both parties had told their side of the story, his Worship bound both parties over in the sum of $50 each to keep the peace for one year.

Pleading guilty before Mr.
Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, to the theft of

HONOUR AMONG THIEVES

Man Who Refused To Tell

Sentence of three months' hard labour was passed on Lai Wing, a 22-year-old unemployed, when he was charged, with another not in custody, before Mr. Q. A. A. Mac-fadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday, for the theft of $50 from Luk Siu-pih, a 37-year-old Chinese soldier.

Outlining the case Sergt. Raldwin said that the complainant was a soldier and was on his way back to Wuchow on board the s.s.
Ho Sang. A conversation was started on board which was later joined by a second man who produced a horn. Some sort of story was told to the complainant and the second man said he wanted to sell the horn which he produced.
The horn was valued at $70 and the defendant said he was asked to buy it. As he did not have the money to spare, defendant said he intended to buy it himself and resell it at a profit.

Impressed by this complainant handed the money over to him who in turn handed it over to the second man. Shortly after, defendant said he had left his luggage in a boarding house and asked complainant to wait for him while he went to fetch it. They went together and although the defendant gave one excuse after another, he was unable to shake complainant off his trail, as the latter had now become suspicious of the whole thing. Defendant was subsequently arrested and several pawn tickets were found on him.

Defendant admitted coming down to Hong Kong to try this trick on somebody and after that to go back to Canton to spend the money. He refused, however, to tell the police where the other man was.

A $10 Kwangtung note found in his possession was ordered to be handed over to the complainant.

man, Chan Kau, aged 25, was sent to prison for two months.
Sergeant Clarke, of Kowloon City Police Station, said the parties were fellow-countrymen and arrived from the country a few days ago. Defendant lived with the complainant for one night. On Wednesday morning, on returning from marketing, the complainant, Tsang Hop Wing, found $50 missing from $55 in a rattan basket.

PATMAN BILL VETO

President Warns Congress

Washington, May 22. Vetoing the Patman Bill, President Roosevelt warned Congress that the Bill, if enacted, would invite "in ultimate reckoning, in uncontrollable prices and in the destruction of the value of savings" such result that "will strike most cruelly those like the Veterans who seem to be temporarily benefited."

"Wealth is not created, nor is it more equitably distributed by this method. The Government, like the individual, must ultimately meet legitimate obligations out of the production of wealth by the labour of human beings, allied to the resources of nature. Every country that has attempted the form of meeting its obligations which is provided in the Bill has suffered disastrous consequences," he said.

President Roosevelt said that benefits which have been extended to Veterans might be measured by the fact that $7,800,000,000 has been spent on their half up to the end of the last fiscal year, not including the amounts received by those on relief.

The President spoke of "liberal legislation for disability and for death compensation" whereby, he said, 1,400,000 men and women have been benefited.

STRAIGHT GRATUITY

President Roosevelt pointed out that payment with new currency as provided in the Patman Bill would mean paying $1,600,000,000 more than the present value of soldiers' adjusted compensation certificates. "This new straight gratuity or bounty amounting to $1,600,000,000," he said, "would destroy insurance protection for Veterans' dependents provided for in the original plan and for the remaining 10 years they would be without insurance."

The President added that this proposal violates the entire principle of Veterans' benefits so carefully formulated at the time of the War and also the entire principle of the adjusted certificate settlement of 1924.

The President conceded that the payment would doubtless result in some expansion of retail trade, but to resort to the kind of financial practice provided in the Patman Bill would not improve the conditions necessary to expand those industries "in which we have the greatest unemployment."

PROGRESSIVE EFFORT

Pointing out that he had already sanctioned a deficit of $4,000,000,000 in order to finance a huge work relief programme, President Roosevelt said: "We cannot in honesty assert that to increase that deficit this year by $2,000,000,000 will itself bankrupt the United States. Today the United States' credit is safe, but it cannot ultimately be safe if we engage in any policy yielding to each and all groups that claims for special consideration. We can afford all we need, but we cannot afford all we want."

President Roosevelt expressed great sympathy for the argument that those who remained at home in civilian employ during the World War enjoyed the special privilege of unwarranted remuneration. "That is true; bitterly true, but a recurrence of that type of war profiteering can and must be prevented in any future war. I invite Congress Veterans and the American population to join me in progressive efforts to root the recurrence of such injustice out of American life. The Herculean task of the United States Government to-day is to see that its citizens have the necessities of life. We are seeking honestly and honourably to do this irrespective of class or group."

EMPIRE DAY MESSAGE

From Earl Jellicoe

The following Empire Day Message from Admiral of the Fleet, Earl Jellicoe, G.C.B., O.M., G.C.V.O., President of the Empire Day Movement was forwarded to us by the Colonial Secretariat:

"The people of the British Empire when celebrating Empire Day this year, will naturally have specially in mind the fact that Their Majesties have reigned for 25 years."

"Jubilee rejoicing will be general throughout the Empire and thoughts will turn to the momentous events which have marked those 25 years."

"First and foremost will be the realisation of the fact that the different portions of our Empire, scattered all the world over and comprising many races, are bound together in the persons of Their Majesties and the Royal Family, so many members of which have visited all parts of the Empire during the last 25 years and have been welcomed everywhere with enthusiastic loyalty. The proofs of Unity of Empire so unmistakably manifested during the great War, and followed up in peace time by such events as Imperial Conferences and the Ottawa Conference, will be borne in mind."

"The courageous manner in which the Empire faced most difficult years of depression will be recalled with pride and satisfaction."

"The wonderful results achieved by the conquest of the air during His Majesty's reign will be in our minds since this has brought the different parts of the Empire into infinitely closer communication both for passengers and mails, whilst the advance of science in regard to wireless and telephones has made actual speech between all parts of the Empire possible. The natural effect of all this should be a yet closer knitting together of the Empire, a strengthened unity and a keener sense of comradeship. In sending warmest greetings in this specially significant year, I pray that the difficulties which still confront us may be soon overcome and that, standing together in strength and sympathy, we may keep the Empire that outstanding influence for peace and security that it has been in the past."

SEAFARING MEN

And The New Life Movement

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Shanghai, May 16.

The "New Life Movement" with its slogans of "simplicity," "cleanliness" and "order," which has gained innumerable adherents on land is now to be spread among Chinese seafaring men as well. The Ministry of Communications has ordered the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company and other Chinese shipping firms to observe the principles of the movement not only for their own good, but also for the benefit of passengers.

According to the same order, educational and recreational facilities for seafaring men will receive careful attention of the shipping firms. Fire-extinguishing and life-saving equipment and stricter hygienic conditions will moreover be emphasized.

Protection of passengers and their luggage, methods of enabling passengers to understand the places they are passing through, especially their products and customs, strict time-schedules for meals and sleeping and anchoring hours are considered most important demands from seafaring men who will follow the New Life Movement.

COMPROMISE SYSTEM

Besides this, the order pointed out that the compromise system, by which a person other than the captain has the full business authorities on board ship has done much harm to Chinese shipping and in its place should be introduced a system of examination, so that only capable men will be employed. Promotions will only come after annual examination. It is also stated in the order that special training should be given to seafaring men so as to improve their technique.

RECONSTRUCTION IN YUNNAN

General Chiang Speaks His Mind

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Kunming, May 14.

General Chiang Kai Shek, President of the Military Affairs Commission, arrived here on May 10, and was accorded a most enthusiastic welcome by officials as well as the general population. This is the first time that a high official of the National Government has visited Yunnan, and it clearly indicates how far the unification of the country has been progressing.

Last winter General Chiang made a tour of the North-West and North China, and since this spring he has been touring the South-West. With the exception of the territories under foreign occupation in the North-East, the only province which General Chiang has not visited in the last two years is Sinkiang. It can not be too strongly emphasized that General Chiang's present tour of the South-West has considerable political significance, and will redound to the benefit of the country.

MUST MOVE FORWARD

In the course of an address at the weekly memorial service at the Yunnan Provincial Party Headquarters yesterday, General Chiang pointed out the importance of industrialization and promotion of the New Life Movement as steps towards the reconstruction of Yunnan province. The reconstruction of Yunnan, General Chiang said, is of vital importance to the regeneration of the nation. In order to attain equality in the family of nations, China must move forward from the agricultural stage towards industrialization, continued General Chiang. In view of the rich natural resources and mild climate in Yunnan, special attention should be paid to the industrialization of this province.

On the other hand, General Chiang emphasized, efforts should also be made to revive the national virtues of righteousness, honesty as well as loyalty. In other words, the New Life Movement, which aims at the revival of these virtues, should be actively promoted in Yunnan province. For, in order to regenerate the nation material and spiritual reconstruction must proceed hand in hand.

EDUCATION FOR ABORIGINES

General Wu's On The Future

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Kwelyang, May 17.

Due to their simple and thrifty habits, the people of Kwelchow are particularly fitted for the hardships of rural life, declared General Wu Chun Hsin, Chairman of the Provincial Government, to pressmen yesterday.

Referring to the financial position of the Provincial Government, General Wu stated that with the abolition of superfluous organs and suppression of various irregularities, the income of the provincial treasury will be gradually increased. The budget estimates of the various provincial departments for the next fiscal year have already been compiled, and will be submitted shortly to the Provincial Government for approval. The provincial budget, he added, will be decided upon according to the minimum scales fixed by the Central authorities.

PROMISING YOUTHS

The education of the Miao aborigine tribes, General Wu asserted, will receive immediate attention from the provincial authorities. In order to avoid misunderstandings and complications, no large-scale training will be attempted. But the more promising youths will be educated in order that they may later assist the Government in the local government of their own tribes.

The Provincial Department of Peace Preservation will be inaugurated shortly. Two companies of Peace Preservation Corps will be organized, and placed under the jurisdiction of the Department, he stated in conclusion.

STEALING A BOY

Leung Sze, alias Leung Yuk, 25 married woman, and Chu Kwai, 58, a widow were charged before Mr. E. J. Wynne-Jones yesterday with stealing and harbouring Li Kam Chuen, a seven year old boy from 125 Kwellin Street on May 17. Chu Kwai and Chan Lin, a 65 year old farmer were also charged with harbouring the child at 33 Lai Kwo Shan Village, Tai Po.

The women pleaded that the boy followed them into a place where they worshipped joss.

On the application of Sub-Inspector Ponitz, the accused were remanded for 48 hours in custody.

A charge of attempting to obtain 13 cattle of pork from a stall owned by Chau Kul at the Western Market, by means of false pretences, was preferred against Wan Hung, aged 27, when he appeared before Mr. MacFadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday. It was stated that defendant went to the stall and produced a chit bearing the chop of the Fook Wing shop, asking that the pork be sent by defendant to them. Chau Kul made enquiries, and found out that the Fook Wing shop had never given such an order. It was revealed that defendant had been given permission to sleep at the Fook Wing shop, and while there had obtained the chop, with which he made out the chit. Defendant was sent to prison for one month.

Charged before Mr. MacFadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday with behaving in a disorderly manner by creating a disturbance in Queen's Road C, Chan Yau, aged 29, a coolie, was fined $5. Sergeant Rodgers said he saw the defendant making a lot of noise, and warned him to move on. When he returned, the defendant was still there, and although warned twice more, refused to go away. So he was arrested, as a big crowd had gathered and was obstructing traffic. Defendant alleged that several men assaulted him, and he was arrested because all the others had run away when the Sergeant came on the scene.

A Chinese who received free treatment at the Out-patients Department of the Kowloon Hospital stole two teeth forcers on Wednesday. The man, Kwok Mun Ping, was seen to leave with the articles in his pockets and when brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday pleaded guilty and received two months' hard labour. It was mentioned by Det-Sgt. Kennedy, that the forcers were valued at $8. Defendant had been attending the out-patients department for about a month and every fourth or fifth day received treatment for boils on his back. Defendant said he stole the forcers because he wanted to pull his teeth out himself.

A fine of $50, or, in default, one month's hard labour, was imposed by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, on Lo Foo, unemployed, who admitted a charge of stealing a table clock valued at $10, from the ground floor of No. 7 Sam Kong Street. The clock was the property of Mul Ping, an aram. Another man, Leung Hing, was also charged, but denied the offence, and his plea was accepted by Inspector Logan. He was accordingly discharged.

Lam Mei, a widow, appeared before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, charged with the possession of 13,000 heroin pills, 20 grains of heroin and some paste containing heroin. On admitting the charge, she was fined $2,500, or, in default, six months' hard labour, and also six months' hard labour without the alternative of a fine. The manufacturing utensils were ordered to be destroyed.

Revenue Officer A. W. Grimmit who prosecuted stated that when he raided the house at No. 6 Sharps Street East on May 16, he saw defendant in the house and as he was unable to gain admittance, he broke down the door. Paraphernalia for the manufacture of heroin pills were all in readiness.

CHANCELLOR HITLER'S SPEECH

Mr. Baldwin's Statement In The House

London, May 23. Mr. Stanley Baldwin, addressing a crowded House of Commons, referred to the impossibility of giving a considered reply to Herr Hitler's speech in the Reichstag, but promised that the speech would receive the fullest and fairest consideration.

The Government, said Mr. Baldwin, recognised that Hitler had made more precise the German attitude in several directions and had indicated in a number of respects what Germany was prepared to do. The Government would devote to these points the closest attention, in a spirit of sympathy and candour.

Mr. Baldwin added that the Government would not fail to do its utmost to bring about international agreement in every direction possible.

Continuing, Mr. Baldwin said Hitler had declared that Germany intended to limit her Air Force to parity with other individual Western Powers. That was confirmation of the basis of Britain's air plan. Mr. Baldwin described as a most important reflection the remark by Hitler that it was possible not only to fix but to reduce the limit of parity by international agreement.

MOST EARNEST ENDEAVOUR

With regard to Hitler's reference to a proposed Air Pact, Mr. Baldwin said ever since the Anglo-French declaration of February 3, Britain had made the promotion of an Air Pact one of the objects of her most earnest endeavour. In accordance with the London declaration, Britain had communicated with Italy, Belgium and Germany on the subject of whether an Air Pact might be promptly negotiated. Britain considered that the Air Pact might be combined with an effort to safeguard the civilian population. Passages in Hitler's speech indicated that he shared that view.

The Government, said Mr. Baldwin, welcomed Hitler's contribution as a help towards a general settlement.

Sir Archibald Sinclair asked the Government to revise its economic policy, summon an Economic Conference and bring Germany into the councils of the nations. He also urged the Government to proceed with the proposed Air Pact, which should include provisions leading eventually to an international air force.

CAUSES OF APPREHENSION

Mr. Baldwin said the British defence position had been considered by the Committee on Imperial Defence and as a result more sub-committees had been appointed, consisting of three staff representatives of the Treasury, the Foreign Office and the Permanent Secretary of the Committee on Imperial Defence.

Re-equipment, which had been delayed so long, in the hope of some general limitation of arms, had been decided upon as an act of national defence which only an irresponsible Government could leave undone.

One of the greatest causes of apprehension was the ignorance of what was going on behind the scenes, the veil had been partly lifted at least, said Mr. Baldwin, by Germany; and he hoped it would be fully lifted soon. Then they could be perfectly frank with each other, and until that was done there could be no real confidence.

AIR PARITY

Speaking of Germany's air armaments, he said he believed his estimate of the numbers of German fighting aircraft, given to the House in November, was right; but they had been completely wrong in their guess as to the rate at which Germany's aircraft production had been speeded up in the past six months. They were completely misled on the subject.

Hitler had told Sir John Simon last month that Germany had already achieved air parity with Great Britain and subsequently revealed that Germany had between 800 and 850 first line aircraft.

Mr. Baldwin said that Hitler had revealed that Germany's aim was parity with France. The British Government had therefore taken 1,500 as the necessary figure for first line aircraft which must be built to give Britain parity. The figures would be increased or reduced, accelerated or decelerated as the situation warranted. Everything requisite for the expansion of the R.A.F. was under consideration and the work would be put in hand immediately.

Both the limitation of arms and collective security of the world would be more easily obtained if all parties started from the same point. The Government was determined to prevent profiteering during the expansion of the Air Force and was consulting with Lord Weir as to how the aircraft industries should be organised for the work. A supplementary estimate would be issued later, he said.

MOST FEARFUL TERROR

Mr. Baldwin considered his peroration had been destroyed after he had studied Hitler's speech, so he proposed to end his planned address on a different note. He believed there was some light in Hitler's announcements and they must all catch hold of what they could and make a fresh resolve to banish from the world the most fearful terror and proposition of men's knowledge ever known.

Major Attlee announced that the Labour party opposed the estimate as a sign of their dissatisfaction with the Government policy. He thereupon urged the immediate calling of a Disarmament Conference session to consider Hitler's proposals.

Major Attlee said the Government would only get national unity on defence by first securing an agreement on equality, based on the collective system, and disarmament, not rearmament.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, for the Liberals, said he agreed that the situation was undeniably grave and that he believed that Germany would remain a danger to peace until she got justice and the equality to which she was entitled. Reuter.

A SPARK OF HOPE

Berlin, May 23. "A spark of hope at the eleventh hour" is how "Siles," writing in the "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung," greets Mr. Stanley Baldwin's speech in the House of Commons.

This commentator says that England will treble her air weapon in order to have parity with France because air parity of the three Western European Powers has become the basis of negotiations for an air pact which will replace the Locarno Pact.

Other Nazi organs comment similarly, describing the British Minister's speech as a good beginning and the first sign of alleviation of tension, showing a will to comprehend the seriousness and large-mindedness of the German offer to the world. Reuter.

REPERCUSSIONS IN FRANCE

Views Of Geneva Correspondents

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press").
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 23, 4.30 p.m.)

Paris, May 23.

Chancellor Hitler's speech and its repercussions abroad still continue to be the main topic of the press on Thursday morning. The semi-official news agency's special Geneva correspondent reports that Foreign Minister Laval so far refused to state any opinion as he wished to reserve judgment till after perusal of the verbatim report of the speech. The German Chancellor's declaration, however, says the correspondent, is regarded as extremely important and merited the careful attention in League of Nations quarters where it is intimated by the French delegation that Foreign Minister Laval would shortly consult with departmental experts regarding certain points of Hitler's speech.

Special Geneva correspondents of various papers, however, declare that the Chancellor's speech caused disappointment in French delegation quarters. "Petit Parisien's" Geneva correspondent asserts that in view of the fact that the Reich Government announced the intention to adhere to the original rearmament programme, all hopes of agreement vanished in League of Nations quarters where it is considered that, except with the passage dealing with the territorial

DEALINGS IN DOLLARS

"One Way Traffic"

London, May 23. Pending the outcome of the Senate's vote on the Presidential veto of the Patman Bill, dealings in dollars to-day were virtually "one way traffic." Well-informed circles, however, are of the opinion that the veto will be sustained, thus avoiding a dollar scare of the first magnitude.

The franc also was weaker with the opinion gaining ground that the French financial crisis is rapidly gathering momentum.

Additional strength was imparted to sterling this morning by continental purchases of gold on the London market. Reuter.

FRANCE FACING A CRISIS

Serious Financial Difficulties

Paris, May 23.

In addition to international worries, the French Government will be faced with serious financial difficulties when the Chamber reassembles next week. The budget deficit is estimated at over £100 millions. Furthermore, Treasury repayments at the end of the year were £240 millions.

The prolongation of military service, and increase in land and air armaments are estimated at between £30 and £40 millions. Socialists loudly demand the devaluation of the franc. The Centre Right is anxious to defend the franc at all costs and urge the retirement of fifty thousand civil servants, cuts in pay and pensions all round.

The Government is expected to ask for dictatorial powers to deal with all problems. Reuter.

clauses and treaty revision, the speech contained nothing new. This part, however, says the correspondent, is regarded as extremely important since it shows the Chancellor's intention not to resort to force in order to bring about treaty revision. It is therefore hoped, concludes the message, that negotiations with Germany on the basis of the London declaration of February 3 will now prove far less difficult. Transocean Kuo Min.

REMARKABLE PROGRAMME

Geneva, May 23. That Hitler's speech contained a remarkable programme is the opinion expressed by League circles which are especially interested in the Chancellor's references to the question of treaty revision. The view is advanced in the League Secretariat that the Committee of Thirteen which has been appointed to study the problem of economic and financial sanctions against those States guilty of breaking treaties and which will meet here this week ought logically also turn its attention to the question of revision, all the more so since revision, under the terms of Article XIX of the League Covenant, constitutes the only legal possibility abrogating the antiquated treaties.

The opinion is also voiced that revision forms the main problem of separation of the Covenant from the peace treaties suggested in Hitler's speech and which is considered to present difficulties of sufficient magnitude to warrant, perhaps, the summoning of a new peace conference.

In any case, it is stressed that the separation of the League of Nations from Versailles could only be accomplished by means of treaty revision. Transocean Kuo Min.

EXPANSION OF BRITISH AIR STRENGTH

Additional Squadrons And Training Centres

London, May 22.

Sir Philip Sassoon, Under-Secretary for Air, in winding up the Defence Debate in the House of Commons to-night, said that Government did not consider it in the public interest to give precise details of the additional aircraft and engines to be ordered for the Royal Air Force.

Foreign nations did not give this information. There were serious disadvantages in making it public.

"But our demands upon the industry will be heavy," he revealed. "We have every reason to believe, however, that the manufacturers will rise to the occasion."

Dealing with the training of personnel of the Royal Air Force, Sir Philip said they had decided to create five new Air Force training centres and to proceed still further with the scheme by which the civil aviation industry would be used for training pilots.

The Under-Secretary stated that the Government proposed to create, in 1935-36 seventy-one new squadrons instead of twenty-two, scheduled in the existing scheme of expansion.

He said the cost would be formidable and a substantial supplementary estimate would be necessary.

NEW BOMBER

He added that the Government now had in production a type of heavy bomber which they considered superior to any bomber owned by any foreign nation. The situation with regard to other types was very satisfactory, he went on.

"We expect in the next few weeks the delivery of the newer types of fighters which show remarkable advances in performance and when compared to any other fighter used elsewhere."

Sir Philip concluded that he was convinced that the Government's policy was the only one which would bring a limitation of armaments so much desired.

The House confirmed the Government's policy by rejecting the Labour motion on the subject 340 to 52.

MORE DETAILS

London, May 22. In the House of Lords, Lord Londonderry, Air Minister, said there were 2,700 fully-trained pilots on the active list, a further 400 in training, and reserves numbering 1,200. It took twelve months to give military pilots efficient preliminary training, and a further eighteen months before they could be called fully competent military pilots. They had a great advantage in this respect over Germany.

With regard to aircraft, Britain had a newer type, already in the advance stage, which she would be producing during the expansion of the Air Force. By March 31, 1937, the strength of the Home Air Force would be 1,500 first line machines, compared with 580 at present. Some 2,500 more pilots would be required and 22,500 additional personnel. Reuter.

PRESS VIEWS ON AIR PROGRAMME

Mr. Baldwin's Response Welcomed

London, May 23.

The comments upon Britain's new air expansion programme generally have assumed party lines, although the morning papers welcome, without reservation, Mr. Stanley Baldwin's cordial response to Chancellor Hitler's speech as improving the situation.

Mr. Baldwin lost no time in declaring that Hitler's speech made a genuine contribution to the solution of Europe's difficulties, says the "Times." No passage was more welcome than Mr. Baldwin's plea for perfect frankness between Britain and Germany, it adds.

Mr. Baldwin, like Hitler, is prepared not only to fix, but to reduce the limit of aircraft construction. The prospect of war, never very imminent, has definitely receded as a result of the Anglo-German declarations. Both have made notable contributions to confidence in Europe.

PLEDGED TO PARITY

The "Daily Telegraph" says the new programme of air expansion in Britain will assuredly receive almost universal assent from British people. Britain has no choice but to build. The Government is pledged to parity with Germany, and nothing else will do.

The "Morning Post" points out that realities superannuate the old programme. The doubling of the British air strength within two years is probably as much as the aircraft industry and the Royal Air Force can undertake to attempt. A greater peace might lead to deterioration in the quality of the machines and personnel.

The programme is still inadequate, the "Daily Mail" declares. "We welcome the pledge that if the present programme is inadequate we will increase it, cost what it may."

Mr. Baldwin's appeal for the acceptance of an enlarged air programme, remarks the "News Chronicle," involves the Government in a serious obligation and urges that Hitler's offer be the subject of action and prompt response.

The "Daily Herald" observes that it is evident that the Western Powers will be satisfied with equality, but adds that it is an amazing deduction that Mr. Baldwin draws when he says that all must build better-steller to the level of the strongest. Why go up instead of down? asked the "Herald." If parity at 1,500 planes will give security, so will parity at 1,000 or 800. Why not ask the Powers to limit their Air Forces to 500 machines?

FINANCIAL ASPECT

The "Financial News" commenting upon the Air Force expansion programme, looks ahead and issues a warning. If the new departure does not imperil the 1935-36 budget, it makes the outlook for 1936-37 exceedingly ominous.

The expenditure is necessary, but that does not disguise the fact that a further reduction of direct taxation has been postponed for another year. It is difficult to see how the cost of new squadrons and new stations will fall short of £10,000,000, while the cost of the increased personnel will likely rise to £3,000,000.

A supplementary estimate of $8,000,000 appears to be a bare minimum necessity. A trebled Air Force will mean at least a doubled annual expenditure, which is already £23,500,000.

FRENCH INTEREST

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 23, 4.30 p.m.)

Paris, May 23.

The armaments debate in the House of Commons was watched with careful attention by the press here. The British Government's decision as regards the British armaments programme was received with evident satisfaction. "Le Jour," however, opines that the British Government considerably modified its attitude after Hitler's speech which, says the paper, was proved by the fact that Mr. Baldwin practically separated the air pact negotiations now pending, although France and Great Britain agreed not to treat this matter separately, and intentionally refrained mentioning the strength of the German army, the Eastern Pact and Austrian independence. Transocean Kuo Min.

FACING MAJOR REBUFF?

Roosevelt's Veto In The Balance

Washington, May 23.

President Roosevelt to-day faces what may be the first major re-buff in his Presidential career when the Senate considers his veto of the Patman Bonus Bill which the House of Representatives overrode last night by 322 votes to 98. A two-thirds majority in the Senate is necessary to override the veto and the Administration is relying on the margin of a few votes.

The President's message to Congress denouncing the Bill is praised by the Republican and Democratic Senators generally, while the papers pay a striking tribute to the President. Both the "New York Times" and the opposition "New York Tribune" fervently hope that the Senate will sustain the veto, while the "New York Daily News," previously a supporter of the Bill, frankly admits conversion to opposition as the result of President Roosevelt's speech which most Washington observers regard as the death knell to the Bill. Reuter.

ABYSSINIA'S APPEAL

Another Note To The League

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press").

Geneva, May 23.

Another Abyssinian note in the form of aide memoire summing up the entire history of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute and containing all notes exchanged as well as the League resolutions referring to the conflict and other documents, was published by the League Secretariat here late on Wednesday evening.

The note states in conclusion that Italy, contrary to the clear meaning of the League Council's resolution of January 19, recommending a peaceful settlement of the dispute, is attempting a delay in the conciliation proceedings while at the same time piling up war materials at the Abyssinian frontier and concentrating troops in order to intimidate the Abyssinian Government. Abyssinia would, however, give way neither to intimidation nor to force but is still convinced that the League would see justice done. Transocean Kuo Min.

DEMILITARISED ZONE FEARS

If Japanese Send Large Force

Peking, May 23.

Well-informed Chinese circles here take the somewhat pessimistic view of the situation in the demilitarised zone, it being generally feared that the Japanese troops if they enter in considerable numbers may make a long stay.

It is also declared in well-informed quarters that the Japanese recently informed the Chinese authorities here that a thousand Japanese troops would be sent into the zone, but at present there is no news here of more than a small detachment entering it.

Though it is considered that there is little likelihood of the Japanese altering the decision to send a large force, Chinese officials are trying their best to dissuade the Japanese sending more men, while the Special Police from several points are striving to clean up Sun Yuen Chin's bandits in the shortest possible time. Reuter.

THE SPRING MEETING AT MACAO

Fine Race Predicted For "The Chairman's Cup"

(BY "TATTENHAM")

With the majority of our local jockeys going over to Macao and some fairly large entries, the prospects of a successful Spring Meeting at Macao on Sunday appears very bright.

Owing to the open nature of one or two races some good dividends should be paid. Six events and an unofficial Ladies' Race should prove to be a good programme.

The opening event The Fat Shan Handicap. Second Section. "D" and "E" Class ponies. Six Furlongs—has attracted fourteen entries, the best of these being Partnership (144 lbs.), Young Chap (163 lbs.), Sarabande (162 lbs.) and Fudge (158 lbs.). I expect Young Chap to start in the Chairman's Cup as the longer race will suit him. Frost may ride Sarabande, in which case I mark him as dangerous.

Bayardo (168 lbs.) in the Sui Tai Handicap. 11 miles should have little trouble in accounting for Daylight Eve (140 lbs.), Bistre (Pan-160 lbs.), Don (150 lbs.) or Racing Boy (140 lbs.-Deltz) and Spinaway (143 lbs.). I do not think Soldier of Victory will be sent over. Spinaway and Bistre should follow Bayardo home.

THE SUI TAI HANDICAP
On account of his "second" in the Stonecutters Stakes last Saturday Bayardo's luck (P. P. Botelho-156 lbs.) will probably start favourite in the Sui Tai Handicap (Once round). Strong opposition will come from Forgemaster (147 lbs.), The Deemster (144 lbs.), Flamingo (Deltz-158 lbs.) and Copperrsmith. The slightly longer distance should suit Copperrsmith and The Deemster.

BOXING EVE TO WIN?
The Chairman's Cup "D" and "E" Classes. One mile, should produce the best race of the day. The most prominent ponies are Boxing Eve (156 lbs.), Chivvrous (149 lbs.), Copper Idol (158 lbs.), Double Chance (161 lbs.), Great Hall (163 lbs.), What A Chance (163 lbs.) and Young Chap (140 lbs.). These ponies are also entered in the Tai Shan Handicap. Six Furlongs, and it seems quite a problem to the owners to decide where to start them. However, I expect Boxing Eve, Copper Idol, Great Hall and Young Chap to start in this race and provide the winner.

GOOD PLACE BETS
Should Soldier of Peace be sent out in the Kin Shan Handicap (Once round). I expect to see him win. Bonny Dundee and Twenty Grand are a couple of good place bets.

WHAT A CHANCE
The Tai Shan Handicap. First Section. "D" and "E" Classes. Six Furlongs; would suit What A Chance (163 lbs.), Gold Bullion (155 lbs.), Boxing Eve (156 lbs.), Double Chance (161 lbs.) and Limelight (148 lbs.) if reserved for this race. Limelight seems to be slightly weighted and if ridden by a good jockey will be distinctly dangerous.
Final Selections will appear in to-morrow's issue

WICKEDEST OF ALL EVILS

Britain's Good Example

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 9.
War, "the wickedest of evils," the modern trend of the world, Britain's strength and hope for the future. These were some of the things dealt with by Mr. Rudyard Kipling at the dinner of the Royal Society of St George in London.

"I am, unfortunately, a producer of fiction," he said, "but, outside office hours, I plead guilty to an interest in facts. Will you allow me just to run through a few facts?"

"Great Britain's quota of dead in the war was over 800,000 when the books were closed in '21 or '22. Furthermore, a large, but unknown, number died in the next few years from wounds or disease directly due to the war."

Standards Revised.
"All these were men of average physique, and, but that they died without issue, would have continued our race. The selective elimination of so many men of one type, and their replacement by so many persons of another type and their children, led to an extensive revision of all standards of British thought and action."

"Now, there were a number of persons who for various motives, had dissociated themselves from the war at the outset. These, however, were all able to answer to their names at the close of the hostilities and to rejoin the national life with a clear field before them."

"Still they were not happy. There is a necessity laid upon man to justify himself to himself in order that he may continue to live comfortably with himself."

"So it was in exact accord with human nature that, very shortly after the war, a theory should have sprung up that the war had been due to a sort of cosmic hallucination which had infected the nations concerned, with a sort of cosmic hysteria."

Pain Is Evil
"This theory absolved those who had not interested themselves in the war, and, by inference, condemned those who had, thus supplying comfort and moral support where needed. Naturally, the notion bore fruit. For this reason, 'Most children and all nations when they have hurt themselves instinctively run indoors and ask to be told a pretty tale. So it was with us, and so, to us, too, a tale was told. The special virtue of our tale was that its moral bases were as inextinguishable as the most upright preceptress could desire. Here they are:

"All pain—whether it comes from hitting one's head against a table or from improvising a four years' war at four days' notice—is evil. All evil is wicked."
And since of all evils war gives the most pain to the most people, wickedest of all things is war. Wherefore, unless people wish to be thought wicked, they must so order the national life that never again shall war in any form be possible."

Renewed Impetus
"Granted the first premise, the rest of the reasoning is unanswerable—on paper. But why the entire commination service should have been addressed by ourselves is a little obscure. For, if ever there was a converted nation since the days of Saint Augustine, it was us."

"A little later our electorate was enlarged by the enfranchisement of all women over 21."
"This gave renewed impetus to our national ideal of an ever-rising standard of living and the removal of want, discomfort, and the accidents of life from the lives of all our people. To this end we built up, and are now building, gigantic organisations to control and handle every detail of those lives."

"But, as I shall try to show, we chose not to provide that reasonable margin of external safety without which even the lowest standard of life cannot be maintained in this dangerously congested island."

Britain's Lead
"The world outside Britain had other preoccupations. Like ourselves it had dealt with an opponent whose national life and ideals were based on a cult of war, which exacted that all his nations should be trained, at any cost, to endure as well as to inflict punishment."

"In this our opponent was excusable. He had, now his place in civilisation by means of three well-planned wars waged within two generations. He had been checked somewhat in his fourth war but soon after the close of it—in '24 or '25—seemed to be preparing for a fifth campaign."

"That the rest of the world was openly or furtively trying to arm itself against whispered eventual-

KOWLOON'S WIN

Over Club de Recreio

Despite the wet weather the match between Kowloon Cricket Club and Club de Recreio was played on the K.C.C. courts yesterday, when some good tennis was seen. The teams were very evenly matched with the result that the games were closely contested.

The K.C.C. team comprising of C. E. Watson, R. S. Capell, G. A. White, W. Gittens, J. S. Smith and Major Bonavia beat the Recreio team comprised of C. Xavier, A. M. Xavier, J. Xavier, N. Beltrao, H. Gonsalves and C. C. Pereira by 3 sets to 4.

Xavier and Beltrao proved themselves the outstanding Recreio pair by winning all three sets. Watson and Capell and White and Gittens of K.C.C. also did some good work for their team by winning two sets each.

The scores were:—
C. E. Watson and R. S. Capell (K.C.C.)

CHINESE DO WELL

In International Sports

Shanghai, May 19.
China "practically swept the board in the first day of the International Track and Field athletic sports meeting held at the Stadium yesterday, when the programme included many heats, whose finals will be run off to-day."

Points scored to date in the men's events are:—China 41, America 18, Russia 9, Great Britain 5, Japan 5, Germany 4. In the women's section the points are:—China 14, America 5, Russia 3.

The Chinese started well by furnishing the winners of the first three heats of the 100 metres. The Chinese ladies were also in great form and took all their events. S. Lee putting up a splendid performance in the 50 metres which she won by yards in 6.9 seconds, breaking the existing record of 7 seconds held by M. Thompson and S. F. Liu.
The Chinese continued their winning sequence in the 1,500 metres when L. C. Chia emerged the victor in a duel with Sgt. Brown, Great Britain. The latter was content to hang back at the start and urge his team mates forward; in the second lap he took the lead but this was short lived as Chia, spurring, overtook him and, with a terrific final burst of speed he drew further ahead to win comfortably.

Great Britain experienced a further setback when Capt. Stuart was running a close second to T. C. Wong in the second heat of the 110 metres hurdles, fell at the last hurdle but one.

Japanese Wins Jump
Japan gained a narrow but well merited win when the diminutive Chikubo just beat Anderson in the long jump.

The final of the 400 metres saw four Chinese taking the first four positions, W. B. Sun hurdling well to take and retain the lead from his colleagues.

PERRY'S FOURTH WIN

The Hard Court Championships

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 9.
If the stands of the West Hants Club at Bournemouth had been three times their size they could not have accommodated all who wanted to see the two best English players, who had, incidentally, proved themselves better than any overseas opposition in the lists, meet in the final of the Hard Court Championships, writes a correspondent. Speculation as to the result of a long-looked-forward-to battle between F. J. Perry and H. W. Austin was evenly balanced. Would Perry's dash, speed and rushing tactics bring him home for a fourth year in succession? Or would Austin's less showy but more scientific plan of play enable him to defeat the man who had, on the same court and in the same final two years ago, been too strong for him?

It turned out to be Perry. But not after a long match of varying fortune, in which he was twice a set to the bad. Then that he should retain his title nothing looked less likely than when Austin reeled off a love-set in a quarter of an hour to open the scoring. Perry simply could not put a foot right at all; he netted his volleys as well as his ground-strokes; and with Austin playing the perfect tennis he had shown in his two previous matches, he had it all his own way.

A DIFFERENT TALE
The second set told a different tale. Perry began to recover his form, and was from the start hitting the ball crisply and not breaking down over the easy ones. Austin was still applying all possible pressure, but a failure to put away his volleys began to creep in, with the result that his opponent covering the court like a greyhound, was able to retrieve them and pass him at the net. This took him to 3-love, and then to 4-1; but Austin added by a little luck got up to 4 all, only to lose the next two games and the set.

Not at all perturbed, Austin started the third set well; but possibly he felt he was taking too much out of himself by continuous rushes to the net, and in this set he used angled cross-court shots and some lovely drops to advantage. This plan brought him to 4-love; and though Perry, playing better again, retaliated strongly, he could not get on terms, and the set went to Austin at 6-3.

It was "now or never" for Perry. The sun came out, hot, and perhaps reminded him of his successes in a warmer climate than ours. Anyway, he threw on it, and put in all he knew. Recognising that the set must go, Austin resorted to the tactics of making his opponent run as much as possible, hoping that he might tire him out for the fifth set while keeping himself fairly fresh. But Perry is no easy man to tire out; he started the final set like a lion; and then—Austin's old enemy, cramp, put an end to his hopes. After a short interval he was able to go on playing, but all the life had gone out of his game, and the rest of the match was as much a procession as the Boat Race. It was a disappointing finish to what had been a match productive of a lot of good play on both sides; the crowd, robbed of its expected thrilling finish, sat almost in silence to the end. Both the players deserve sympathy; Perry would surely never wish to win a match by his opponent's disablement; and Austin, apparently, is still liable to an attack of an enemy we all thought he had disposed of. Not that he lost through it, necessarily; I think Perry was in the flowing tide, and would have won in any case; he is a terribly strong finisher.

THE WOMEN'S SINGLES.
If the men's singles had had a disappointing finish, the women's did not even provide a fight. Last year Miss Scriven was five times within a point of becoming cham-

Champion. She must have thought it was her turn this time, as many others did. But Miss K. Stammers was of a different opinion. Heartened by her victory over Miss Round, she went on to court, and from the start, found her touch and hit her piercing drives as if nothing could stop her. When Miss Stammers has her eye really in, very little can stop her. Certainly, on the day, Miss Scriven couldn't.

Two games in each set were all that she could secure; and so the first final between two left-handers that I can recall added a new name to the list of hard-court champions—a very well-deserved win for a girl whose capabilities some had doubted.

The afternoon of disappointments continued, for Miss Dearman's sudden illness necessitated her having to retire from the two finals—women's and mixed doubles—which she had reached. Very hard luck on her, for she might well have added the women's doubles, at any rate, to the list of doubles championships she has been winning all the world over.

GOLF SURPRISE

Crawley Beaten

London, May 22.
The chief surprise in the second round of the championship played at St. Anne-on-sea was the defeat of Leonard Crawley, the ex-English champion, by G. Henriques, a prominent Lancashire player, by three up and two to play.

The third round matches have been going much as expected. A notable feature is that there is only one survivor out of eleven Canadian entries.

HAT TRICK BY H. MESTON

Trial Matches At Cricket Club & Recreation Club

Shanghai, May 19.—The local cricket season advanced another stage yesterday when two interesting trial matches took place on the Shanghai Cricket Club and Recreation Club grounds, while Shaford, and the Municipal Police each had a practice, the latter players batting to a time limit. In the Rees' match H. Meston performed the first hat-trick of the season.

A fair gathering of spectators were present to witness the game between P. V. Simpson's XI and D. W. Leach's XI on the Cricket Club ground, the latter side batting first to retire winners by 75 runs. In contrast to last Sunday's performance, H. E. Orr did remarkably well in the bowling, for with only four overs, three of which were maidens, he dismissed Geere and F. A. M. Elliott for the very low concession of three runs.

DISASTROUS START
D. W. Leach's side were able to commence their innings about two hours after the start, and the opening was a disastrous one for after F. A. M. Elliott had dismissed Moller with the first ball of the over, Begg made only a bare four runs before his off stump was taken by Ansice. The Bidwell-Humphreys partnership was pretty to watch and the score mounted with lightning rapidity.

D. W. Leach immediately commenced with vigour, and although he featured for a very short period, a useful contribution of 30 runs pleased the onlookers, for with the exception of two, his score consisted entirely of boundaries, and great was the surprise when he ultimately fumbled an easy ball from Geere.

On the Rees' ground C. J. Smith's XI were very lucky to register a narrow win of 4 runs over a side captained by T. A. Madar, for the victory can be said to have been entirely due to three players, Kermani and the brothers G. and H. P. Madar, for their scores comprised 80 per cent. of the total. Meston proving his sterling worth with the ball, did the hat-trick. G. Madar and S. R. Kermani, undoubtedly saved the day with a glorious partnership.

T. A. Madar's XI opened with Evans and White, but the latter was out to Hale, and Lerion followed shortly afterwards being caught and bowled by Shroff. The Evans-F. R. Kermani partnership met with some measure of success, and although the former eventually was easily caught by Smith, his 20 was not to be despised, and Kermani went on to make a very useful 43 before he too fell to a catch by Shroff, with the total standing at the century mark. After Meston had brought the account to 153 his dismissal left the responsibility to Gifford and T. A. Madar for a final effort to gain the victory. The latter managed to pile on another five, but his partner, after taking one more, and with only another 5 to get, was brilliantly caught and bowled by S. R. Kermani to end the game.

CONSCRIPTION IN GERMANY

New Defence Law Provisions

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Berlin, May 22.—The classes of 1914 and 1915, that is, all the Germans who were born in those years, will be mustered in the course of the present year as to their fitness for active service, while Class 1915 will also be available for the labour service, according to information given by General von Reichenau, departmental chief of the Reich War Ministry in a statement to the Press representatives on Wednesday, in which he commented in detail on the various provisions of the new defence law. Class 1914 will enter into active service next autumn, while in the border province of East Prussia Class 1910 will also be called to colour.

Persons belonging to classes 1910-1913 may voluntarily enlist for active service while the older classes will be drafted only for eight week courses of military training and then enter the ranks of reserve.

Von Reichenau stressed that the new defence force, entirely independent of Parliamentary decisions, did not recognise any privileges of rank or education. Volunteers as well as non-commissioned officers may extend their period of active service to two years in the army and to four years in the navy or air force. Recruiting will be carried out by 24 military boards of inspection and 223 local commands while in demilitarised Rhineland zone recruits will be drafted by the civil authorities.

Non-Aryans and persons married to non-Aryans may volunteer for active service but they cannot, under any circumstances, be promoted to higher ranks. Von Reichenau pointed out that the newly-created Reich War Ministry corresponds, to similar ministries in all European countries and did by no means indicate any war-like intentions.

Any soldier with the necessary qualifications may become an officer without having gone through any higher educational institution. All former officers and non-commissioned officers of the old Imperial Army may be appointed reserve officers provided they possess the necessary qualifications.—Transocean Kuo Min.

The parlour car for the Kemal's private use will have a dining room, a bedroom with adjoining bath as well as a four-bedded room for the President's immediate entourage. The two other coaches will contain ten sleeping compartments each as well as a parlour.

The firm has also been given an order for a special corridor coach for the use of Chancellor Hitler on his official journeys.—Transocean Kuo Min.

GERMAN AMBASSADOR DESIGNATE

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

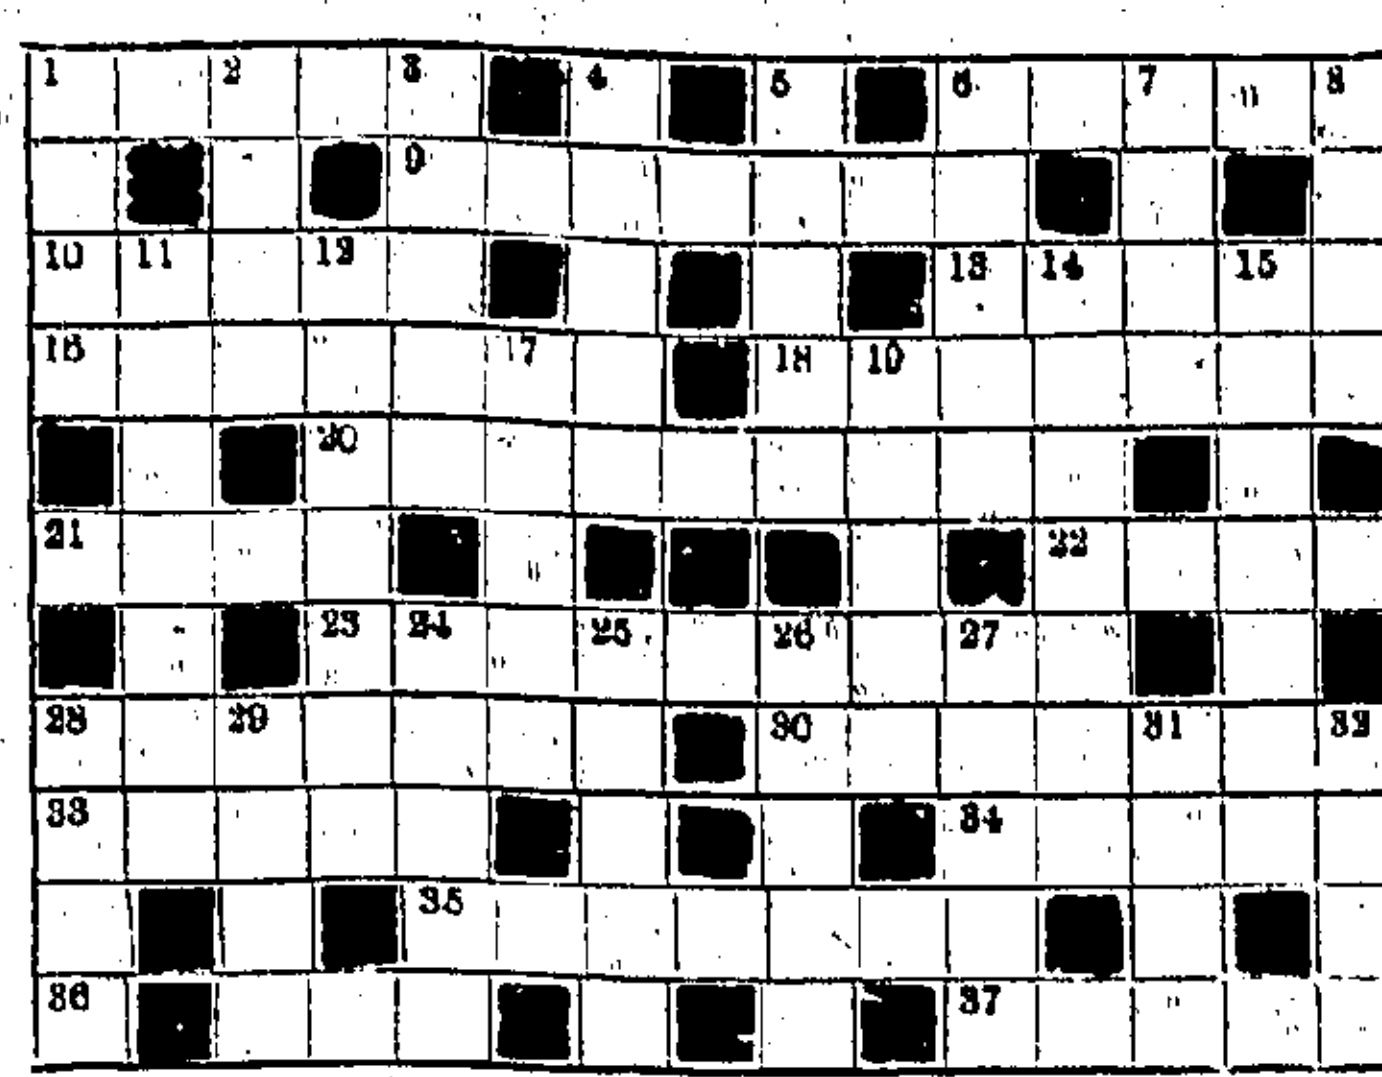

Berlin, May 22.—The Foreign Press reports that the German Minister to China, Dr. Trautman will come home on leave and not return to his post as devoid of foundation, according to authoritative information which adds that Dr. Trautman has been designated the first German Ambassador, to China and that the Chinese Government has already given its agreement.—Transocean Kuo Min.

RAILWAY CONFERENCE

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Nanking, May 17.—The 9th National Traffic Conference was formally opened at the auditorium of the Railway Ministry yesterday. A total of 95 Government officials and representatives of the various railways administrations were present. Mr. Tseng Chung Ming, Acting Minister of Railways, presiding over the ceremony, recalled that the last National Traffic Conference was held four years ago. During the past four years, due to the efforts of the Ministry and the co-operation of the various railway administrations, considerable progress has been made in the improvement and promotion of transportation services, such as the institution of through traffic and land and water and the readjustment of the time schedules.

The aim of the Conference, he emphasized, will be centred on (1) the better communication and rationalization of transportation, (2) increase of efficiency in transportation, (3) unification of the regulations and systems of the different railways, (4) railway improvement and (5) the adoption of a unified policy on freight charges. Mr. Tseng ended by expressing the hope that those present will help to realize the purposes of the Conference.—China United Press (by mail)
